

The New Criterion

December 17, 2020

Music for a While #38: Bits and pieces

by Jay Nordlinger

The New Criterion · Music for a While #38: Bits and pieces

Subscribe to The New Criterion's podcast series via Apple or Google.

This episode is a real smorgasbord—works, mainly short, by Domenico Scarlatti, Rachmaninoff, Duparc, Stravinsky, Jonathan Dove, and Jerome Kern, among others. A tasty, diverse spread. You may well want it all.

Scarlatti, D., Sonata in G, K. 14

Rachmaninoff, Andante, Cello Sonata

Duparc, Lento, Cello Sonata

Lachenmann, "Five Variations on a Theme by Franz Schubert"

Stravinsky, Piece for Solo Clarinet

Shostakovich, Impromptu (for viola and piano)

Dove, "Fair Ship," from "Under Alter'd Skies"

Kern-Tatum, "The Way You Look Tonight"

Jay Nordlinger is a Senior Editor at National Review.

His podcast with The New Criterion, titled "Music for a While," can be found here.